Edward J. Morgan in "The Only Way at English's.

An audience of good size-considering the counter attractions-witnessed a notable event at English's Opera House last night -Edward J. Morgan's Indianapolis debut as a star in a remarkable adaptation of Charles Dickens's "Tale of Two Cities," made by Freeman Wills. Many who have read the wonderful story of a wasted life redsemed in the end by a noble sacrifice would expect to be disappointed in "The Only Way," which is the title the story has assumed upon being transferred to the stage, since it is but natural to anticipate that in dramatizing a story of such great length much of importance must necessarily be omitted. Mr. Wills has, however, accomplished the seemingly impossible, for he has of a verity done his work so well that each of the essential characters of the book live and move and have their being upon the stage in so lifelike and natural a manner as to appeal to the beholder with even greater power than do the mute pages to the most interested reader. In the prologue is told the story of the origin of Ernest De Farge's unquenchable hatred for the Evremond family, which in the play following prompts him to entice the young nobleman back to France to meet his doom at the hands of the Commune. Here also is narrated the immuring of Dr. Manette in the Bastile, where he lies for fifteen years. the rescue of Darny, alias Evremond, from death in England. In the second act is revealed the happy home life of Lucie Manette, the old doctor, her father, and Mr. orry, their bachelor friend and counselor. Here also is revealed the love of Darny and Lucie upon which Carton gazes as "the man outside." Darny, or Evremond, is duced to forsake his promised bride by a false message that an old family servant | Honor was continued yesterday at the is in peril in France and crosses the channel, only to be instantly seized, denounced as a hated aristocrat and put upon his trial before a jury which is little better than a odthirsty mob. Witnessing the despair of Lucie. Carton forms his great resolve to end his wretched life in 'the only way.'

ever unfolded within the narrow limits of a drama. Mr. Morgan won a triumph last night which an actor of more years in the profession might have envied. His portrayal of the difficult, and at times repellant, character of Sydney Carton was a veritamasterpiece of histrionic effort. With rare skill and subtlety he dwelt heavily upon the darker passages in Carton's life. making, as a consequence, the brighter incidents stand out in bolder relief. His taithful, feeling reading of the final words ascribed to this most paradoxical of heroes brought at least a suspicion of moisture to even masculine eyes in the audience, and once again people' remained fast in their seats, asking for one more glimpse of as pathetic and picturesque a scene as has over been put upon the stage.

as an old and well-liked acquaintance on his first entry, and won a personal triumph by his delightful portrayal of the character that was second only to that given Mr. Morgan. Frank McGlynn handled the exacting role of the revengeful Detarge in a masterly way, rising to a great height of dramatic power in the Commune scene of the third act, when he told the story of the wrong done his family by Evremond's father. A good bit of character acting was done by Charles B. Hawkins as Mr. Stryver. Daniel H. Harkins made an excellent Dr. Manette. It is disagreeable to record that Earle Browne was very weak in the role of Charles Darney (Evremond.) Minor male parts which were handled with skill and tact were those of the president by Louis Wood, M. Du Maury by John Lowell, Marquis De Boulainvilliers by William Knowles, Comte De by Millie Day and "The Vengeance" by Grace Pierce. Margaret Robinson made a beautiful Lucie Manette and, for the most part, women in the company, however, clearly fell to Grace Elliston, whose Mimi is a the general atmosphere of the play. The view of the Manette villa and of the Place de la Roquette in the final tableau, showing lurid Paris in the background, were particularly fine. A word of praise is du to the ability of the man who staged the production. This is brought out in bold relief in the court scene and in the prison depicting the acute thirst for blood in the Commune, demanding heads of aristocrats so long as there were any to offer. The summoning of a half-dozen victims to the fatal knife before the numbers of Carton and Mimi were called out served to heighten the solemnity of the closing tragedy. "The Only Way" will be given for the last time to-night.

Notes of the Stage. Yorke Stephens is arranging for a reproduction of George Bernard Shaw's "You Never Can Tell.' Seats are on sale for Richard Golden's appearance in his revival of "Old Jed Prouty" at English's Opera House Tuesday and Wednesday nights and Wednesday afternoon next week.

XXX Peter F. Dailey is winning praise from Philadelphia audiences this week for his clever work in his new starring comedy, "Hodge, Podge & Co."

Vincent Sternroyd, who is playing Laertes in E. H. Sothern and Virginia Harned's revival of "Hamlet," had the same role in the recent notable revival of the play at Sir Henry Irving's London Lyceum Thea-Mr. Sothern and Miss Harned have a new

The question of the effect of the election upon theatrical business is being discussed by English papers just now. The consensus of opinion seems to be that an attraction which is already a success will not be damaged by an election, while one that has barely been paying expenses will be hard nit.

The delightful portrayal of the comedy role of "Cis" Farringdon by Thomas M. Reynolds in the stock company's production of "The Magistrate" at the Grand this week is one of the best things that clever young actor has shown to his Indianapolis admirers. The play is meeting with the success it richly merits.

Pittsburg papers are extravagant in their praise of the production of "A Female Park this afternoon and the rest of the week. It is said that the piece is better than it was last season. New scenery, new specialties and several of the cleverest entertainers on the stage combine to make up a strong attraction

XXX The management of the Grand announce that instead of the regular mid-week matinee taking place on Wednesday afternoon next week it will be postponed until Thursday afternoon on account of the floral parade taking place on Wednesday. On Thursday the matinee will commence at half past one, so as to enable those who desire to witness the arrival of Mr. Roosevelt plenty of time to do this.

MANY WEDDINGS CELEBRATED DUR-ING THIS MONTH.

The Smythe-Fiske and Other Ceremonies in This City-Personal and Social Notes.

Beautiful and fragrant blossoms in mass of rich foliage bedecked the interior of St. David's Church and formed a pretty night. The bride was Miss Florence Grace Fiske, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Fiske, and the bridegroom Mr. Donald Vernor Smythe. The ceremony was pronounced by Rev. C. S. Sargent, rector of the church. The ushers who escorted the guests to their seats were Mr. Robert Tyler, Mr. Mark Dennis, Mr. Paul Sargent and Mr. Gregory Conner. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Emma Louise Fiske, and Dr. Elmer Smythe, brother of the bridegroom, acted as best man. Prof. William H. Donley played the wedding march from "Lohengrin" as the bridal party entered the church, and during the ceremony "O Promise Me" was softly rendered. The wedding gown was of white crepe de chine over white silk. The skirt had a long train and a closely-fitting shirred yoke around the hips. Around the bottom of the skirt above the hem was a cluster of tucks in scallop effect. The bodice had a shirred yoke of chiffon, the sleeves below the elbow being of the same. The yoke was finished with a bertha of point applique lace and a spray of orange blossoms. The only ornaments worn were a pearl brooch, the gift of the bridegroom, and a pearl necklace with diamond clasp, also a wedding gift. The long veil was draped with orange blossoms and the bouquet was also of the orange blossoms. Miss Emma Louise Fiske wore a pretty gown of point d' esprit over white taffeta. The skirt had a pointed ribbon yoke around the hips, from which fell an overskirt hemmed with a couple of narrow ruffles edged with satin the bottom of the skirt. The low bodice sette with long ends. She also wore a veil fastened with pink roses and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Following the ceremony at the church a reception was given at the home of the bride, 2416 Talbott avenue. BITTEN BY RATTLESNAKE

ONE OF THOMAS L. CARROLL'S REP-TILES TURNED ON HIM.

Throughout the Night He Was in Hands of a Physician-Snake Gave Warning.

Thomas L. Carroll, an old soldier, who follows the county fairs and circuses selling headache remedies from street corners, came near losing his life last night from a rattlesnake bite. In order to attract attention and at times to take in a little side money. Carroll has four rattlesnakes, caught in Bartholomew county, which he handles. For several days he has been at the Hogan's Alley saloon on the Circle exhibiting the snakes. Last night he pulled the largest one from the cage, placed it on his lap, and was about to startle his spectators by putting the reptile's head in his month. The snake coiled, and after a vigorous warning with the rattles, drove a fang, which Carroll had neglected to pull out, into the forefinger of his right hand.

The snake was at once returned to the cage, and a few moments later Carroll became deathly sick. He took several drinks of whisky and applied whisky locally, then using labial suction to withdraw the venom. His hand began swelling, and he was taken to the office of Dr. J. Q. Davis, on East Market street. He became unconscious, and revived only after several hours' work, when he was sent to

The snake which bit Carroll is four feet ong and has twenty-two rattles. Carroll said he had handled snakes for nineteen years and had never before been bitten by a reptile. Carroll was a private in Company C, of the Thirty-ninth Indiana Regiment, and afterward went to Texas, where he married an Indian squaw, who bore him nine children, one of whom is with him. He is a pensioner, and is fifty-nine years of age. Carroll's exhibition is one which the carnival management declined to engage on account of its revolting features.

AS TO IMPERIALISM. "We go, then, to the Philippines for some evidence of the imperialistic purpose. There were some who said that if Dewey had sailed away after his victory we would have been free from these questions. I do not blame our Democratic friends for their concern about the government of the Philippines. They have not a luminous record of successful government. But the Republican party is equal to the task, and it will meet it. Dewey could not have sailed away from Manila. If he had attempted to sail our of Manila harbor the cries of women and children and men who were being massacred would have held him there. His duty was there to protect the defenseless. to save the city from loot and the people from the assassin's knife. It is said we have overthrown an independent republic. There was no independent republic in the Philippine islands, or the faintest suggestion of a republic when the battle was afternoon Governor Mount spoke, and this fought. There was no thought or desire for independence. The insurrection was simply' sions from Spain, some of which had been

"Aguinaldo was across the sea in Singapore when the battle was fought. He returned; first was friendly, then assumed a hostile attitude; and while the treaty was pending in the Senate he was attempting to enter into an alliance with Spain to overthrow the authority of the United States. The question of the power under the Constitution was settled when the treaty was ratified and exchanged, and the question is not open for debate now or

"They talk about militarism as if militarism was a menace to the security of the Republic. By the establishment of a protectorate in the Philippines after you have surrendered the sovereignty of the United States, you have not rendered unnecessary the rentention of an army and a navy. You must have an army and a navy to protect. The talk of danger to the Republic because of militarism is on a par with a great many of the odd and unfounded statements that are made. The American people are loyal to the army, the army is loyal to them. OUT FOR M'KINLEY.

Judge C. N. Pollard, a Sterling Demo cratic Leader of Howard County.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. KOKOMO, Ind., Oct. 3 .- One of the big gest and most demonstrative meetings ever held in Kokomo, was that of John P. Irish, Tuesday night. The opera house was full of shouting sound money men. A feature of this meeting was the speech of the presiding gentleman, C. N. Pollard, former Democratic judge in this Republican circuit. He stands at the top here as a gentleman of sterling worth and strong convictions. He was enthusiastically received Miss Belle Layman entertained a number | and was repeatedly cheered. He spoke, in part, as follows:

"At this day of departure and apostacy us by the founders of the government, and the illustrous advocates of those principles -Jefferson, Jackson, Benton, Douglas, den and Cleveland-it ought to be refreshing to us to again hear them exponded to again hear the clear ring of the true metal instead of the doleful, mournful and God-forsaken cry of 16 to 1. "They claim that gold is the money of Likewise a depreciated currency al ways works the greatest hardships on th small capitalists and the poor.' He overhauled Mr. Bryan's record

"imperialism" and in relation to the treaty with Spain with telling effect, and closed with a strong appeal for support for the administration, in which he said: paramount issue of this campaign is Bryan and Bryanism seeking an indorsement by ing. the voters of the country, opposed by those who do not believe in either Bryan or Bryanism and who repudiate him and are laboring to defeat him."

W. C. Baker Is in Line.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Oct. 3 .- W. Baker, who has lived here for several years and was the Democratic candidate for the Legislature from Wabash county before he moved to this city, last night at a Republican meeting announced that he would cast his first Republican vote next month for McKinley. The Republican bets have been freely posted in the past few days and only few of them have been taken. One offer is of $2,500 to $1,250 that McKinley will elected, another of $50 that McKinley carry Illinois by 40,000; another, $100 even that he carries Illinois by 50,000; $100 to $150 that McKinley carries both Indiana and New York; $200 to $100 that McKinley carries New York, taken; $100 even that Durbin defeats Kern for Governor; $10 even that McKinley carries Indiana.

HE IS NOT LUKEWARM. Gen. Wallace Announces His Fidelity to President McKinley.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Oct. 3.-The Republican county central committee met this morning, and among those in attendance were Colonel Durbin, Captain Hart, District Chairman Sims and General Lew Wallace. Short talks were made by the visitors. General Wallace, in his remarks, said the idea of the election of Bryan was "utterly abhorrent to him." The Democrats had been telling around that General Wallace was lukewarm, but his speech showed General Wallace said substantially: have not agreed in all things with Presihave we done? The present Congress at dent McKinley, but for this campaign I will bury my hatchet and propose to work and vote for Republican success. I shall > vote for the re-election of Mr. McKinley because the very thought of Mr. Bryan's success is abhorrent to me, as it should be Bryan is insincere, for no man can take the nominations of three parties without, in case of election, fooling some one of them. Mr. Bryan abates nothing in his belief in the free silver heresy, which, if in his power, would bring only ruin and disaster to business, to the farmer, to the laboring man. But as a loyal and patriotic American I oppose him, and charge him with being directly responsible for the death of every one of our brave soldiers in the Philippines. Our soldiers are there, our flag is there, no matter how they got there. "The Filipinos are shooting with a more deadly aim, our soldiers are being killed in greater numbers, the American flag is being fired on, and I hold Mr. Bryan is responsible for the American lives now being sacrificed in the guerrilla war of as-

The meetings were held in Music Hall, which was filled for the purpose of securing certain conces- | to overflowing at both meetings. Governor Mount arrived this morning from Thorntown, where he spoke yesterday, and will go to Veedersburg for a speech to-morrow. This afternoon at 1 o'clock a procession escorted Governor Mount to Music Hall. At the head rode Captain M. V. Wert and Leonard Ensminger, captain of the First Voters' Rough Rider Club. The band came next, in front of a squad of old soldiers. Governor Mount was in a turnout with John R. Bonnell, county chairman; Alexander Scott, candidate for representative, and Patrick O'Donnell. Then came the Young Ladies' Durbin and Landis Club, of Newtown and Wingate; the Rough Riders with old-gold sashes on horseback; the Morton Club, of this city, and the Garfield Clubs of New Market and New Richmond. The audience was called to order, and Alexander Scott, of Ladoga, acted as chairman. After a song by the glee club, the chairman introduced Governor Mount, who and New Jersey, second deputy comwas received with applause. SEYMOUR, Ind., Oct. 3 .- Ex-Governor W. S. Taylor, of Kentucky, was given a magnificent reception here to-night. When his train arrived from Indianapolis at persons eager to grasp his hand. Mrs. Taylor arrived a few minutes before the Governor, and waited for his train and accompanied him, with the committee, to the new Lynn Hotel. At 7:30, the hour for the meeting, the opera house was packed and hundreds were unable to find standing room. The band played "My Old Kentucky Home" as Governor Taylor came on the platform to address an audience o 1,500. City Attorney John M. Lewis presided and introduced Governor Taylor, who spoke for an hour and a half, making

Situation Encouraging.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. SULLIVAN, Ind., Oct. 3.-If all signs are not misleading the Republicans of this county will make the best showing in a presidential year in the history of the party. Notwithstanding the fact that the Democrats are largely in the majority here. their meetings are poorly attended, and their orators run much to abusing Republican leaders, rarely attempting to make an argument. Republican campaigners say they never saw larger and more enthusiastic audiences at this stage of the campaign, and the business men, laborers and miners here are out in great numbers to hear Republican doctrines expounded.

No Apathy at Spiceland.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. SPICELAND, Ind., Oct. 3 .- A rousing meeting here last night was addressed by ex-Governor Taylor, of Kentucky, and Congressman James E. Watson. Hoover's large hall was filled to overflowing and enough were unable to get in to fill two more such halls. Delegations and bands of music were present from several of the neighboring towns. The meeting was very enthusiastic. Many Democrats were present and listened attentively. There is no apathy among Republicans in this vicinity. and it requires but little effort to get up a big meeting. Old Soldiers Organizing.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. BRAZIL, Ind., Oct. 3 .- The old soldiers of this county met here last night and organized a McKinley Club of 109 members, Several of the veterans made speeches. William Leavitt was elected president and H. M. Pierce secretary. The club will hold another meeting next week, and many other veterans have signified a willingness to become members. Nearly all the soldiers of this county are stanch supporters of McKinley and Roosevelt. Preparations at Richmond.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. RICHMOND, Ind., Oct. 3 .- Roosevelt day will be made the most important event of the local campaign. He will be here Oct. 11, and great preparations are under way. One feature will be an industrial parade, and Democrats and Republicans alike will take part in this with but few exceptions. There will be delegations from all parts of the Sixth district, and some the Rough Rider troops will come overland

Gov. Mount at Thorntown.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. THORNTOWN, Ind., Oct. 3.-Gov Mount's meeting here yesterday afternoon was undoubtedly the most satisfactory Republican meeting ever held here. Dr. Rose, who presided, said in presenting Governor Mount that he was in the midst of the people who had known him all his life and also had been neighbor and friend, Governor Mount addressed 1,500 men and women for two hours out of doors.
